HAD NO RIGHT TO PROTECTION

(Correspondence of Associated Press)
DUBLIN, Dec. 18.—An American alien in Ireland who said the commissioner of police (to recover $500 taken from him when he was arrested in Ireland, for alleged drilling of Irishmen has failed to collect his claim.
William Podlar had fought on the side of the south party in the rebellion of 1916 and was in the police office. He was afterwards arrested and deported but returned to Ireland and was engaged in military training when he was arrested and the money confiscated.
The case was taken before the king's bench which was unanimous in deciding against him. Podlar's counsel had claimed that his client as a friendly alien was under protection of the king but Justice Doherty, who presided, pointed out that a man who had aided the king's enemies and fought against the king's troops had no right to such protection.

MONO MINES ARE WAKING UP

Mono county, California, silver mines are reopening with astonishing results as shipments from the old camp of Benton show. During the silver days when that section was one of the most active on this side of the Sierras a dozen mines of first magnitude were operating there and giving employment to hundreds of miners and freighters. Some of these properties are being revived on the leasing system and several are being reopened on company account. William H. Fording has just returned from a motoring trip through that region, bringing news that the Boraska, Comanche and Cornucopia, which began operations last fall, are all working and soon will be producing a heavy tonnage. The Powell lease on the Boraska is one of the most successful, having taken out considerable high-grade containing 2,600 ounces of silver to the ton. Los Angeles oil men have taken over the Boraska, which has installed a compressor and is about ready to ship and the Comanche is putting in a compressor. The Stephenson on Mount Montgomery has a splendid showing and $100,000 was offered for the group on a bond. This proposition is in abeyance. The Stephenson has been worked by the Watterson interests, of the Inyo county bank. The old mine at Queen is also in the list at some and another property at Queen is getting into shape. Over a hundred men are regularly employed and this number will be increased when

CANNIBALS DIE FROM OPIUM

(Correspondence Associated Press)
PAPEETE, Tahiti, Nov. 29.—The Marquesas, fiercest cannibals among the Polynesians in the South Pacific, are disappearing. A few years ago they numbered more than 50,000. The last census showed only 3,000 survivors.
Opium, introduced by white men into the Marquesas Islands, the most northerly French settlement in Oceania, is held responsible by many for the approaching extinction of the race. This drug is no longer sold in the islands but it is said its effect is shown in a death rate of 25 per cent a year.
Physically the Marquesas were magnificent. Before tototoing was forbidden the bodies of the natives were adorned by the most intricate and beautiful designs and some of these may yet be seen. Although they had a number of admirable qualities, the Marquesas in the olden days constantly engaged in tribal wars with the consequent feasts of human flesh.

FINDING WORK FOR YOUNG VETS

More than 1,700 soldiers who returned to find their old jobs gone, have found work through the St. Paul employment bureau of the National Catholic War Work council and Knights of Columbus.
While the great majority of the men who went to war have been absorbed in industry and now are occupied, the work of finding employment for the former soldier must continue, and is increasing in difficulty, according to Frank M. Kieron, director of the St. Paul office, who is well known in Tonopah.
"The men now coming back, I believe, are having a harder time than those who were discharged early," said Mr. Kieron. "With almost the whole of the 4,000,000 men back, positions for those still coming are not rapidly available."
Mr. Kieron is generous in his praise of the St. Paul employer. "The cooperation I have received from business men is very edifying indeed," he said. "They have given every assurance that they are back of the fighting man. Many, I know, went so far as to employ men from me that they didn't really need."
Every soldier who seeks Mr. Kieron has a long and sympathetic consultation with him, says the Pioneer Press. "I feel I am doing a work of great responsibility," he said. "I realize that the work the boys choose now will in most cases determine their careers. And to a great many I find that the best advice I can offer is that they go to the farms where jobs that pay $75 a month with board, lodging and laundry are offered."
